Volunteers Fill Many Red Cross Posts

The American Red Cross is basically a volunteer organization. Its paid workers are few compared to the vast number of chapter volunteers who participate in all Red Cross activities. Volunteer services is one of the most active divisions of the Red Cross in Marion. It is headed by Mrs. C. W. Sawyer, chairman, and consists of motor service, production and supply service staff and service, community service to camps and hospitals, Gray Ladies, Nurse's Aid, canteen and social welfare aid service.

The Motor Service, is the Red Cross transportation service and works jointly with other Red Cross services. The chairman for the local chapter is Mrs. William K. Luse. Fundamentally an emergency squad, the motor corp furnishes transportation wherever needed and assists with calls for home service.

Last year four volunteers gave 54 hours during the fund campaign as well as for making home service calls.

Making clothing, layettes, surgical dressings and knitted garments for needy at home and overseas is the foremost job of the Production and Supply Service. Mrs. J. T. McNamara, who is the chairman of this service, has as cochairman Mrs. Homer Waodell and Mrs. Paul Knauss, Mrs. E. G. Siefert is in charge of all knitting.

Marion chapter production volunteers totaled 3,000 hours in this service, making 897 garments for Foreign Relief and the Armed forces and 224 garments for layettes for local use.

In the staff aid service, volunteers work as interpreters, typists, filing assistants, librarians, and switchboard operators at hospitals, chapter offices, and other welfare agency staffs. They may help the medical staff with records or help edit a hospital newspaper.

In the Marion chapter seventeen staff aides gave 641 hours and three other persons who were trained in clerical work, assisted at the chapter office and at campaign headquarters to the extent of 84 hours. They also assisted at the visitors' desk at Marion City hospital on Monday afternoons and evenings. Mrs. M. C. Murphy is chairman of the staff aide service.

The list of workers in the Marion County Red Cross drive, which starts Monday, appears on Page 14.

Aid To Camps, Hospitals

Still another part of the volunteer services is that of community service to camps and hospitals. In the Marion chapter, Mrs. C. W. Smoot is chairman and serves with a committee of four. The primary project of this group is to provide gifts for service men who are sea on Christmas. This service called "Christmas on the High Seas" has been conducted during the past five years. It reached its peak in 1944 with a total of 800,000 gifts. The estimated requirements for last year was 155,000. The local chapter accepted a quota of 25 gifts, which were given by individuals, clubs and organizations.

These are four of the volunteer services carried on by the Red Cross in Marion. The other four, Gray Ladies, Canteen, Nurse's Aide and Social Welfare Aide Services will be discussed in a later article.

ANGRY CROWDS ASSEMBLE AT PRAGUE OFFICE

Hostile to Display of 3-Power Denunciation of Czech "Dictatorship."

By The Associated Press

PRAGUE, Feb. 28—By request, the U. S. Information Service removed from its windows today a copy of the three-power denunciation of events in Czechoslovakia.

The foreign office made the request. A large crowd had gathered outside the Information Service's offices in one of the main streets off the Public Square, and it was represented that they were hostile to the display.

These other developments came today:

►Dr. Prokop Drtina, minister of justice until last week, was found badly injured—an attempted suicide, according to the official police account.

►The government withdrew broadcasting privileges from foreign radio men. Dr. Oscar Kusta, head of the foreign press section of the ministry of information, said "They did not show in their broadcasts a true understanding of the situation."

►Premier Klement Gottwald, addressing a farmers' and peasants' rally, sounded a keynote of a campaign against "domestic and foreign reaction." He said: "We will have a complete change."

►The Communist regime extended its influence to the schools. The Communist paper Rude Pravo said classrooms in Bohemia will display pictures of Prime Minister Stalin.

The three-power denunciation which had appeared in the U. S. Information Service windows called the Gottwald regime a disguised dictatorship. The statement was issued Thursday by the United States, Britain and France. It was only referred to here by newspapers this morning. Their stories from the government news agency said Czechoslovakia considered the statement an interference in its public affairs.

The Information Service Section is a section of the U. S. state department, but it is a building in another part of town from the U. S. embassy.

Publication Banned

The information ministry announced that Time and Life magazines and the Chicago Tribune are banned from entry into Czechoslovakia.

Eight British, eight French, one Belgian and two Swiss publications and two Bohemian papers published in the United States, Narod and Kaloli, also are banned.

The British publications barred are the Daily Mail, the Sketch, the Mirror, Cavalcade, Illustrated News, the Catholic Herald, the Catholic Times and the Catholic Digest.

The official account of Dr. Drtina's injuries said he was found in front of his Prague villa, and a letter indicated he had tried to kill himself by jumping from a window. He will survive his head injuries barring complications, the announcement said. He is in a hospital.

Dr. Drtina was one of three cabinet ministers who were intended victims of intercepted bombs last September. He is a close friend of President Eduard Benes.

Premier Klement Gottwald today promised "a complete change" for this nation.

Speaks at Rally

Gottwald made his statement at the opening of a farmers' and peasants' rally here.

"Merely changing a few people in the government is not enough," he declared. "New stage settings are not enough. We will become merciless in getting rid of agents of domestic and foreign reaction."

The farmers' rally was arranged as a companion piece to a trades union assembly last Sunday. Some observers believed that assembly gave the premier the last push he needed toward getting his party into power.

The labor group, headed by Antoin Zapotocky, stood behind Gottwald and back him up with a token strike and the threat of a general strike.

Some believed its action was the clincher for Gottwald's argu-

Finns Ponder Soviet Treaty

Action Expected Next Week on Stalin's Proposed Defense Pact.

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland, Feb. 28—Reliable sources said today President Juho K. Paasikivi has sounded out parliamentary groups on Prime Minister Stalin's proposal for a Soviet-Finnish treaty of mutual defense.

They said he has asked these groups to tell him their attitude toward the proposed agreement by Tuesday.

Political circles in Helsinki were reported already discussing the procedure of negotiations suggested by Stalin in his diplomatic note to the president.

Sources close to the government said yesterday Stalin sent his note Monday.

Asks Immediate Action

They said he asked that the Finnish government take immediate steps to open negotiations toward a treaty either in Moscow or Helsinki.

A defense treaty with Finland would give Russia chain of naval ports with headquarters from the Black Sea on the south to far north of the Baltic.

Some sources said the proposed treaty would be quite similar to that Russia signed with Czechoslovakia in 1945. The Soviet-Czechoslovak pact was a 20-year treaty of friendship and mutual defense against Germany or any power allied with Germany, directly or indirectly, in war.

Czechoslovakia passed this week under a Communist-controlled cabinet. The new government was sworn in yesterday in Prague.

In Parliament Monday

The Soviet note to Finland is expected to be placed before parliament Monday or later as a question concerning a foreign power.

Under parliamentary procedure, such a question must be dealt with in three hearings by parliament unless the chamber, by a five-sixths majority, votes it to be urgent.

Even if the note reaches parliament Monday, any final decision

NEW TRIAL FOR YOUNG ASKED

Michel Cites 15 Instances in Which He Alleges Error Occurred.

Motion for a new trial for Edwin D. Young was filed in common pleas court this morning by Attorney Paul D. Michel. Young was found guilty of first degree murder in the slaying of Mrs. Zora Gerbes. The jury recommended mercy in returning its verdict Thursday afternoon.

Attorney Michel asked the court to set aside the verdict and to grant a new trial and/or lessen the degree of the offense.

He lists 15 reasons in support of his motion including eight in which he alleges the court erred.

Reasons contained in the motion are:

The verdict of the jury was the result of passion and prejudice.

The jury failed and refused to follow instructions of the court on the law.

The defendant was prevented from having a fair trial by reason of the fact that the jury had formed an opinion before selection as jurors.

That the court erred in overruling defendant's motion for a new trial.

That evidence introduced in said cause was insufficient to warrant return of a verdict of murder in the first degree.

That the verdict is not sustained by sufficient evidence and is contrary to law.

That the court erred in allowing witnesses to testify as to verbal admissions after having sustained objection to the confession.

That the court erred in refusing to direct a verdict of acquittal at the termination of the evidence introduced by the state.

That the court erred in refusing to direct a verdict of acquittal as to murder in the first and second degree at the termination of the state's evidence.

That the court erred in refusing to direct a verdict of acquittal at the close of all the evidence in said case.

That the court erred in refusing to direct a verdict of acquittal as to murder in the first and second degree at the close of all the evidence.

That the court erred in allowing evidence to be introduced over the objection of the defendant.

Misconduct of the prosecuting attorney in causing the confession to be printed in a local paper over the signature of the defendant and compelling the defendant to submit to a radio broadcast.

Errors of the court in his charge to the jury.

Errors of law occurring at the trial and apparent on the face of the record.

At Least Five in This Area To Celebrate Leap Year Birthdays

At least five residents of Marion and this vicinity will celebrate leap year birthdays Sunday. The celebrants range in age from 88 to four years. One is Miss Louise John, retired Galion school teacher, who will be 88 on her twenty-second birthday and the youngest is David Wayne Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Williams of near Morral, born in Marion City hospital on Feb. 29, 1944.

Four in Marion To Mark Birthdays

The "first" birthday celebration of a Marion county child, who will be four years old, the "fourth" of a Harding High school sophomore, the "eighth" of a young Marion matron, and the "seventeenth" of a Marion resident who was born in 1880, will be held Sunday, relatives of the four have revealed. Yes, these are the leap year birthday folk.

Individual observances will be somewhat varied but relatives and friends will join heartily in wishing each the best, and "many returns of the day" on this extra special occasion. One Marion couple will celebrate a weaning anniversary Sunday.

There will be a family dinner Sunday for David Wayne Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Williams of near Morral. Mrs. Arthur Amick of 200½ East Center street and Mr. Amick and another couple who are close friends will celebrate in some way, "perhaps go to a show and then dancing." A family dinner will be held at the home of Edward Sorow of 320 Kennedy court to honor his birthday date Sunday.

Patricia Anne Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Walton of 244 South Vine street, celebrating her "fourth" birthday will be sixteen years old. She is a member of the sophomore class at Harding High school. A small family observance of her birthday will be held at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Fiegs of 495 Forest street will have been married 25 years Sunday.

The birthday dinner for young David Wayne Williams at the family home near Morral will feature a birthday cake with candles placed in miniature "animal candleholders." Besides his mother and father, those who will offer their very best wishes for his happy birthday will be his grandparents, Mrs. Lloyd D. Williams, who lives in one half of the Williams duplex home, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Burns of Marion. A sister of his mother, Mrs. David Carpenter of Cleveland, will come for his birthday. He is looking forward with great expectation to

Retired Galion Teacher To Be 88

Special to The Star

GALION, Feb. 28—When someone says that Miss Louise John, Galion's oldest retired schoolteacher, will observe her twenty-second birthday anniversary Sunday you just don't believe it—and then you catch on—it's that Feb. 29 date when folks born on this day just don't have a birthday every year, but once in four.

Miss John, who is in excellent health, will be 88 years old this year. She keeps house assisted by her cousin, Miss Luana Eysenbach, who makes her home with Miss John. Although the winter keeps her indoors more than the summer, Miss John said in an interview this week, "When I want to go out to see my friends, I go." She attends First Presbyterian church regularly, then goes out for her Sunday dinner.

"I haven't any comment to make on current events," she replied to a question. "It isn't very pleasant to be hard of hearing, especially when one is curious about world affairs." She has always been interested in economics and politics but her impaired hearing has been a handicap to her. A former teacher of languages, Miss John converses as freely in German as she does in English.

She was honored this week by the Senior circle, Child Conservation league, of which she is an honorary member. The club presented her a birthday cake with 22 lighted candles.

In 1944 Miss John completed eight years as a member of the board of education, which with 54 years of teaching, gave her a total of 62 years' service in the public schools. At the time of her retirement this was believed to have been a national record in public school service. Miss John retired from teaching in 1923, 37 of her 54 years having been spent in the Galion High school where she taught languages and literature. She came to Galion in 1886. She began teaching in 1875, at Delshor, O., the town of her birth, at the age of 15. Her first salary for five years was only $30 a month.

Mrs. Taft Thinks Bob's Chances Are Growing

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—Mrs. Robert A. Taft believed her husband's chances of winning the Republican presidential nomination "are getting better every day."

The wife of the Ohio senator said on Mutual's Meet-The-Press broadcast last night that she doesn't agree with public opinion polls which indicated that President Truman could easily defeat Taft.

"Every time Bob has run for public office," she said, "newspapermen and public opinion people have said he was just running for the exercise. But he has been a candidate many times, and he has won every time."

Mrs. Taft said she has "no second choice" for the GOP nomination.

City, C. of C. Officials Meet Here with Representatives of Companies.

Marion Chamber of Commerce committee chairman and Mayor Harry L. Dowler met with representatives of bus lines operating through Marion and the local station agent Friday noon for a conference on the terminal situation. The luncheon meeting was held at the Hotel Harding.

Chairman of the meeting was Henry Kreigbaum, head of the Chamber civic affairs committee. Present were J. L. Nuber Jr., representing the Great Lakes Greyhound Lines, of Dayton, K. I. Smith, operator of the Marion depot, Frank A. Cluff of Columbus, owner of the Columbus-Marysville Line, R. P. Servas of Mt Vernon, of the Servas Transit Co.

The conference was called by the Marion Chamber for the purpose of talking over what may be done to improve the local terminal situation.

Bus line representatives acknowledged the problem and a second meeting was tentatively considered after representatives confer with their respective companies on the situation.

One of Two Trusties Captured After Break

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., Feb. 28—East Cleveland police reported today to Ohio reformatory officials they had captured one of two trusties who escaped from the institution's farm dormitory last night.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said he had been advised by the police that Chester Bridges, 22, sentenced from Franklin county on armed robbery charges, had been captured at a road block.

The second prisoner, Myron Hannold, 24, sentenced from Ashtabula county for assault with intent to rape, escaped when the officers stopped the pair at the road blockade.

The two men escaped from the farm dormitory between 6 and 8 p. m. Friday. Supt. Glattke said they apparently stole an automobile in neighboring Ashland county as they fled northward toward Cleveland.

GIRL WEDS RUSSIAN, QUITS U.S. EMBASSY

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Feb. 28 — A tall American blond who quit the United States embassy yesterday with a criticism of its policies, revealed today she is the wife of a Russian baritone.

Annabella Bucar, 33, of Clairton, Pa., said for 13 months she has been the wife of Konstantin Lapshin. Lapshin, about 35, sings with the Moscow operetta theater. The couple met about two years ago in Moscow when Miss Bucar came to the Soviet union as a member of the United States information service.

She resigned yesterday saying she felt further work with the embassy would be "incompatible with my present views."

In her letter of resignation Miss Bucar said she had acquired a real understanding of the Russians. She said the policy of the U. S. embassy "is directed against these people."

Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said last night he had not received the letter yet. He added Miss Bucar had been "very remiss" in not informing the embassy earlier of her marriage.

Under state department regulations, she should have notified the embassy of her marriage and immediately resigned, he said.

In the P. S. information service Miss Bucar did some work on a Russian-language magazine titled "Amerika."

Sister Doesn't Approve

In Clairton, a sister, Mrs. Emily Balch, said: "It sounds like she's turned Russian on us. We don't approve of it."

Another sister, Mrs. Mary Louise Coyne, said Miss Bucar had telephoned her family Thursday about her marriage in Russia. "I don't think anyone minds if she stays there," Mrs. Coyne said.

Miss Bucar's father, Ivan, a farmer and small coal operator, said his daughter had left home against his wishes because she wanted to see the world. He said he had not heard from her since she left in 1946.

Miss Bucar was born in Trafford, Pa. Her parents were born in what is now Yugoslavia. She is a University of Pittsburgh graduate.

State department officials in Washington said embassy reports had described her as an efficient worker.

'Tain't Funny, Says Congressman Of McGee's Show

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—The weather bureau has had to deny—officially—it writes the scripts for the radio show, Fibber McGee and Molly.

This was brought out today when testimony was released on the bureau's request for $23,743,650 next year.

Maybe you get a laugh out of Fibber and Molly. But not Rep. Stefan (R-Neb.) Said Stefan of their program on Jan. 20:

"There is a character known as the 'Weatherman' . . . He looked at McGee's newspaper and read the weather forecast. McGee said it seemed odd that a weatherman should get information of a weather forecast from a newspaper, and Molly's comment was substantially this:

"'Well, a newspaper costs only five cents, but that is more than congress will give the weather bureau for new equipment.'"

Remarked Stefan:

"If that comment was intended as a joke, the humor seems to have been left out."

He said it looked to him as if someone—maybe someone in the weather bureau—was trying to put the heat on congress. Did anyone in the weather bureau have anything to do with the broadcast?

Said Dr. F. W. Reichelderfer, head of the weather bureau:

"Mr chairman, we are aware of the Fibber McGee broadcasts. I might say that they have been annoying to us right from the start . . . .

"I can say quite factually that we had nothing to do with the program, that we do not care for the program . . ."

In short, congressionally speaking:

'Tain't funny, McGee.

WINTER ROARS BACK IN MIDWEST STATES

By The Associated Press

Winter roared back into parts of the midwest today after nearly a week of comparatively mild weather.

Strong winds drifted new falls of snow in parts of the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin, blocking highways and disrupting communications.

About 500 persons, enroute to a basketball tournament at Cloquet, in northern Minnesota, were rescued early today after being marooned for six hours in their cars and school buses on a snow-blocked highway.

Rivers in sections of Illinois and Iowa rose rapidly after steady falls of rain. The precipitation belt extended eastward into Pennsylvania and New York state. Mild and mostly fair weather was reported in the southern states and along the Pacific coast.

The snow and wind storm centered over southeast Wisconsin today and moved east northeastward. Temperatures in North Dakota and Minnesota dropped to 10 to 15 above and a drop of five below was forecast for Minnesota tonight. The colder weather was expected to spread over the north central region over the weekend. The mercury was in the 50's in the Ohio valley this morning.

Tornadoes struck three Texas communities yesterday, causing two deaths while a tornado near Canton, Ill., damaged farm buildings. Eight business buildings and several homes were damaged by a strong windstorm which struck at Roxana, Ill.

U. S. Again Sending Warplanes to China

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28—A secret but once suspended agreement to arm China with 1,000 warplanes is in full force again.

The administration let this be known today in reply to congressional cuties demanding military help for Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist armies, which are locked in battle with Communist forces.

At least 936 planes already have been transferred to China. Of the 135 listed last month as still due and ready for shipment, 37 are flying fortresses. In addition, the United States has trained 5,137 Chinese to man and service the planes.

Secretary of State Marshall, then President's special envoy to China, called a halt to the program in August, 1946, when his efforts to stop the Chinese civil war broke down.

The ban was relaxed gradually until Marshall lifted the final barrier to fulfillment of the air force program last Dec. 16, it was disclosed last night.

Butter Not Fattening, Is Scientist's Report

By The United Press

CHICAGO — If you are on a diet you don't have to cut butter off the list to lose weight.

So says Dr. Ancel Keyes of the University of Minnesota, who has made many food experiments as director of the laboratory of physiological hygiene.

"Butter is no more fattening than other foods," Keyes said. "In cases of substitution of butter for other carbohydrates in tested diets, a slight loss of weight is noticed."

3RD PARTY STORY DENIED BY FOSTER

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28—William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist party in the United States, today denied published reports quoting him as saying "the Wallace party is the Communist party."

"The story was a deliberate falsification," Foster told a reporter. "I never said anything of the kind."

Foster spoke last night at a Lenin memorial meeting and concert" celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Communist manifesto.

The American Communist leader said he told the gathering "Liberals must turn in the direction of the new party being organized by Henry Wallace."

A vote for the Wallace presidential candidacy, he said, "will not be throwing your vote away. It will help to elect a liberal congress."

Foster pointed out that the Communist party has been advocating a third party "for years and years." It has been on the presidential ballot for a number of years, he added.

Ohio CIO Board Split on 3rd Party

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 28 — Henry Wallace's third party has split the executive board of the Ohio CIO council.

Jack Kroll, director of the national CIO-PAC and head of the Ohio council, disclosed the division yesterday in a press conference.

He said five of the 19 state executive board members voted against a resolution approving a six-point program of the national CIO executive board.

One of the six points was the CIO "should not support a third party movement in 1948." Kroll said the five dissenters cast their votes specifically against the third party declaration. The resolution passed, however, 14-5.

Kroll named the five as Len Maitland of Dayton, United Electrical Workers; George Martin of Portsmouth, shoe workers; Orza Stass of Lima, United Electrical Workers; Clarence Coulter of Akron, Rubber Workers, and George Grigsby of Cincinnati, leather workers.

The CIO-PAC director said the CIO "has no pets" and "is not definitely committed to support of any candidate." But, he did not hesitate to say the CIO was "definitely against" Taft, Dewey, Stassen, Vandenburg and Warren among the Republican presidential nomination possibilities. He included Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia, a Democrat, on the list.

Kroll shied away from a stand on President Truman or House Leader Joseph Martin as possible presidential nominees.

Wallace Says Czech Story Result of U. S. Policy

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 28 — Henry A. Wallace says this week's Czechoslovakian story will repeat itself so long as the U. S. continues what he termed its "gun and dollar policies."

In the first of a series of Minnesota campaign speeches in behalf of his Third Party presidential candidacy here last night, Wallace said the "Czech crisis is evidence a 'get tough' policy only provokes a 'get tougher' policy.

NEW JAP PREMIER. Hitoshi Ashida, former diplomat and newspaper publisher, has been elected by the lower house of the Diet as Prime Minister of Japan. He succeeds the Socialist Tetsukatayama, who resigned recently. Ashida is a Democrat and has been called the "strong man" of Japanese politics.

Escaped Official Tells Inside Story of Red Czech Conquest

Edward Bauer, an escaped official of the Czech Peoples party in Czecho ovakia, tells in the following article the Communist blueprint for conquest worked. Bauer was in the forefront of the futile fight against the Communists and was forced to flee his homeland. He is now in Frankfurt.

FRANKFURT, Feb. 27 — The American people are asking "How is it possible for a handful of gangsters to conquer so democratic a country as Czechoslovakia?"

Here is the explanation.

It all started about a month ago. The Democratic ministers brought up an issue in a cabinet meeting about which they had known for a long time, namely:

That the Communists were stealing or "buying" arms from the nationalized ammunition factories and distributing them among Communist workers.

One huge arms cache was found in a Communist hideout and Communist Deputy Joseph Sosnar was obliged to resign because he obviously was involved in the whole business.

The Democratic ministers decided this must cease.

Showdown Comes

They protested the appointments of dozens of Communists to high police and army posts. The appointments were made by Communist Minister of Interior Vaclav Nosek and Defense Minister General Ludvik Svoboda.

The cabinet decided that these nominations were invalid and the appointees must be recalled. When no action was taken, the Democratic ministers announced they would stay away from cabinet meetings until the business was cleared up.

This was the situation last Saturday when a plane landed at

JAN MASARYK (above), non-party member of the Czechoslovakian cabinet, continues as minister of foreign affairs in the new cabinet presented to President Eduard Benes by Communist Premier Klement Gottwald in Prague. New cabinet is composed chiefly of Communists and their left wing supporters.

Prague's airfield with Vaceslav A. Zorin.

Zorin is the Soviet deputy minister of foreign affairs. He had a huge briefcase under his arm when he stepped from the plane. It contained the blueprint for the Communist putsch.

Upon Zorin's signal, Nosek and company went to work.

They had already placed their confidantes in all key positions, and these now began rounding up thousands of persons, mainly members of the intelligentsia, as "traitors," "reactionaries," and "spies."

This happened all over the country. But at the same time, they organized a march on Pague and filled the capital with thousands of militant Communists, armed with brand new weapons stolen from various arms factories.

Then they proceeded to form a new, so-called democratic government. It included a number of stooges who claim to represent the true democratic parties, the real leaders of which had been jailed or persecuted.

In the List

Among these men were:

Zdenek Fierlinger, the Social Democrat leader who had been relieved of all his duties by the Socialist party congress in 1947. He now "represents" those who expelled him.

(When the Communists took over, Fierlinger was named to head the party from which he had been ousted, and was made minister of industries in the new cabinet hand-picked by the Communists).

Vladimir Sevcek, former member of the Slovak Democratic party which had expelled him months ago for plotting with the Communists.

Alois Petr, a member of the Catholic People's party who never was among its leaders. He never did explain the disappearance of two million crowns of party funds. He joined the new government against the express orders of the party executive.

The Masaryk Mystery

The name of Jan Masaryk as foreign minister in the new cabinet is a mystery. (Masaryk, who has favored cooperation with the west, is the son of the founder of the modern Czechoslovak state).

Masaryk has been ill for some time and probably joined the cabinet on the wishes of President Benes who wanted at least one man he could trust among those criminals.

What will happen now?

Thousands of Czech students and intellectuals have demonstrated in the streets to express their love of freedom and democracy. They were shot at.

The Communist putsch is so well organized that there is little hope left.

Elections with a free ballot, which were scheduled in a few weeks will not be held now.

The Communists were bound to lose heavily in the elections.

One of the main reasons why the Communists seized power illegally was to prevent these elections.

The Communists will stage elections in which they will get 95 per cent of the votes.

Another European country has lost its liberty.

The American government could refuse recognition to a gangster government and break diplomatic relations. Gangsters understand only one language.

Stockholm Newspapers Rap Stalin's Proposal

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 28—Some Stockholm newspapers today expressed grave concern over Russia's proposal of a defense pact with Finland.

The conservative Svenska Dagbladet, which viewed the proposal with "grave anxiety," said:

"Finland is facing a crisis, which, in all respects, is of more direct concern to Sweden and Scandinavia than the fate which befell all the border states between the Gulf of Finland and the Black Sea."

Under the headline, "Finland in Turn," the big liberal daily Dagens Nyheter commented:

"Also Finland will now be firmly incorporated in the Russian military system, will now be made a satellite among other satellites."

War Buddy Makes Good On Loan for Good-Time

By The United Press

NEW CASTLE, Ind.—Art Cabbage received a check for $5.52 in payment of principal and interest on a loan he made to a war buddy in Paris in 1944.

Cabbage, a chain store manager, got the check in a Christmas greeting card from Kenneth Dean, Philadelphia, Pa. He recalled that he lent Dean 770 francs while both were spending a weekend leave in Paris.

Later, both were wounded in the Battle of the Bulge. They never met again and lost track of each other.

Dean explained in a letter that he had been trying to locate Cabbage for three years so he could pay him the money.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

DIFFERENT COLOR

Editor of The Star: I am a member of the Young Democrats club of Pennsylvania and the Young Democrats of America. We are proud to defend the Communist party from a different color, which always is red. She claims we need brave men and that the Commies are just that—not afraid to stand up for what they believe in.

Now I wonder if Mrs. Tate knows what they believe? I am afraid she has not read up to the minute news, for Communists are not brave, they work from underneath, they peddle their lies and prey upon the weaker ones so they may become dissatisfied with their government, and take the Russian way of life.

The Communists only have one aim, and that is to overthrow the government and to create a revolution in all countries.

She says, must our American way of life always remain the same. Why not? Have we not enjoyed liberty and freedom for a century and a half? We, I am sure, would not want to change our Constitution for that of the Soviet Union.

Whether the American way is outmoded or improved, it suits me and many millions more.

WELFARE GROUP RAPS G.I.S. PUNISHMENT

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Feb. 28 — The Girls' Industrial School at Delaware is too harsh in its treatment of inmates, a report approved by the child welfare committee of the Welfare Federation here claims.

A group of 21 persons made a study of correction for the child welfare committee, of which Appellate Judge Joy Seth Hurd is chairman.

At the Delaware institution, the group reported, they found a too free use of punishment and a lack of human kindness and sympathetic understanding.

Runaways are locked in their rooms too long and get only bread and milk for the first three days, the report said. For the remainder of their detention the girls being punished get only one full meal a day and bread and milk for the other two, the report continued. It added that many detention facilities are without toilets or heating facilities.

Further criticism was made that G.I.S. employes were paid low wages.

Mrs. Edna J. Byers superintendent of the Industrial school, said she would have no comment "until I have been permitted to read the full report."

The Memoirs of Cordell Hull

President Kept Hull Unaware of Deal On Division of Balkans

By CORDELL HULL

(Copyright, 1948, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

INSTALLMENT XXX

When the Russian army began to push into Romania in April, 1944, the relationship between the Soviet Union and the Balkans came to the forefront of our diplomacy.

A wave of speculation arose in the press of many countries as to whether Russia's aims were those of liberation or of acquisition. Soon the British Ambassador Halifax inquired of me on May 30, 1944, how this government would feel about an arrangement between Russia in Romania and Britain exercising influence in Greece. He handed me a written communication from his government asking whether we had any objection to an agreement between Britain and Russia whereby, in the Romanian affairs should be the concern of the Soviet government and Greek affairs the concern of the United Kingdom. The Britain-Russian understanding would apply only to war conditions and would not effect the rights and responsibilities which each of the three great Powers would have to exercise at the peace settlement.

The British foreign office said that the United Kingdom government was fully alive to the importance of avoiding even the appearance of carving up the Balkans into spheres of influence.

AFTER TELLING HALIFAX that I would give this serious consideration, I said pointblank:

"At first blush, in view of the many charges and counter-charges now rising—and which will certainly rise in the future—about encroachments first by one government and then by another on the economic, political, military or other internal affairs of the Balkans and other European countries, it would be a doubtful course to abandon our broad basic declaration of policy, principles and practice. If these are departed from in one or two important instances, such as you propose, then neither of the two countries parties to such an act will have any precedent to stand on, or any stable rules by which to be governed and to insist that other governments be governed."

I was, in fact, flatly opposed to any division of Europe or sections of Europe into spheres of influence. I had argued against this strongly at the Moscow conference. It seemed to me that any creation of zones of influence would inevitably sow the seeds of future conflict. I felt that zones of influence could not but derogate from the overall authority of the international security organization which I expected would come into being.

I was not, and am not, a believer in the idea of balance of power or spheres of influence as a means of keeping the peace.

ON THE FOLLOWING DAY, May 31, Prime Minister Churchill, to whom Halifax's cable reporting my remarks was undoubtedly communicated, sent the President a telegram direct in which he argued strongly for our approval of the proposed agreement. He emphasized that Britain did not wish to cut up the Balkans into areas of influence, that the arrangement would apply only to war conditions, and that there would be no change in the present collaboration between the American and British governments in formulating and executing the policy of the Allies toward Greece and Romania.

His telegram contained two additional items of information. One was that it was the British government which had suggested the agreement to Russian Ambassador Gousev in London. The second was that the Russians informed the British on May 18 that they were in agreement with the suggestion, but before they could give any final assurances they would like to know whether the United States government had been consulted and whether we were in agreement with the arrangement.

Mr. Roosevelt sent this telegram to me for consideration and to draft a reply.

My associates at the state department agreed with the original attitude I had taken with Lord Halifax, namely that we could not lend our support to any such agreement and, in fact, should do what we could to discourage it.

WHILE THIS REPLY was being prepared in the department, another message arrived from the prime minister on June 8. He again said there was no question of spheres of influence being involved. But he added that, although we all had to act together, someone must play the hand. It seemed reasonable to him that the Russians should deal with the Romanians and Bulgarians and that Britain should deal with the Greeks, who were in Britain's theater of operations, were Britain's old allies and for whom Britain had sacrificed 40,000 men in 1941. The same, he added, was true of Yugoslavia.

Mr. Churchill commented that he had kept the President constantly informed, but that Britain had been playing the hand in Greece and had to be very careful to play it agreeably to the Russians. Events, he remarked, moved very rapidly in the Balkans.

Britain, he said, followed the lead of the United States in South America as far as possible so long as it was not a question of her beef and mutton, on which naturally she held strong views because of the "little folk."

This telegram was important in that it brought in two countries not hitherto mentioned by the British—Bulgaria to be dealt with by Russia, and Yugoslavia to be dealt with by Britain. It therefore seemed more urgent even than before to oppose the arrangement which would bring one set of countries under Russia and another set under Britain.

THE PRESIDENT SENT our reply to the prime minister on June 10. The President acknowledged in the reply that the government responsible for military actions in any country—Britain was militarily responsible for Greece and Russia for Romania—would inevitably make decisions which military developments necessitated. But we were convinced that the natural tendency for such decisions to extend into the political and economic fields would be strengthened by the agreement proposed by the British. The President stated our opinion that this would surely lead to the persistence of differences between Britain and Russia and to the division of the Balkans into spheres of influence, regardless of Mr. Churchill's statement that the agreement would be limited to military matters.

The President concluded that we would prefer to see consultative machinery set up for the Balkans to resolve misunderstandings and to prevent the development of exclusive zones of influence.

The prime minister came back the following day, June 11, with a long, forceful telegram saying that the President's message had given him much concern. Action would be paralyzed, he said, if everybody had to consult everybody else before taking action. Events in the Balkans always outstripped the changing situations.

Mr. Churchill advanced two examples in which direct action by himself had resolved situations—the mutiny of Greek troops at Easter, and a prospect of trouble in Egypt. If Britain had had to consult other Powers and a system of triangular or quadrangular cables had got under way, chaos or impotence might have resulted.

IN THE GREEK CRISIS, he commented, the President's telegrams to him had worked wonders. His agreement with the President had been complete and the result had been entirely satisfactory. He asked why all this efficient direction should be broken up into a committee of mediocre officials such as were being littered throughout the world. He further asked why he and the President could not keep this in their own hands, considering how they saw eye to eye about so much of it.

CHURCHILL
He defended his action on Balkan situation.

The prime minister finally suggested that the arrangement he had proposed should have a three months' trial, following which it would be reviewed by the three Powers.

When this telegram arrived, I was resting for a few days at Hershey, Pennsylvania. The President, without consulting me or the state department, replied the following day accepting the prime minister's three months' proposal, but adding that care should be exercised to make it clear that no postwar spheres of influences were being established.

The President did not inform the state department of this action.

I returned to Washington at this juncture. On the day of my return, June 12, not knowing of the President's telegram to the prime minister, we sent the British embassy a memorandum which the President had previously approved in which we outlined our arguments against the proposed Anglo-Russian agreement.

STILL NOT KNOWING of the President's telegram of June 12 to the prime minister, I sent him a letter, on June 17, in which I pointed out that Mr. Churchill openly applied his proposition to the entire Balkan region by mentioning Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, in addition to Romania and Greece, and that he advanced our position in South America as an analogy.

"Mr. Churchill's further exposition of the British case," I said, "did not overcome our objections or seem to us to warrant any change in our views toward this dangerous proposal."

I also called attention to what I termed an "extremely disturbing aspect of this matter"—namely, that the British had not discussed a proposal of this nature with us until after it had been put up to the Russians and the latter inquired whether we had been consulted.

The British foreign office had suggested that the whole proposal arose out of a chance remark by Eden to Ambassador Gousev, whereas Mr. Churchill's frank telegram of May 31 said plainly that Britain had suggested to the Russian ambassador that Britain and Russia should agree between themselves as to Romania and Greece. The prime minister's telegram, I said, "motivated that this government would have been faced with a concluded spheres of influence agreement between the British and Russians of the latter had simply agreed without raising the question of our position."

ON JUNE 28 my attention was called to a cable from our ambassador to Greece, Lincoln MacVeagh, whose embassy was at Cairo, telling us that his British colleagues had informed him that the American government had agreed to the proposal, with the provision that it should be subject to review after three months. This was the first intimation we had of the President's decision on June 12.

I wrote the President a letter, which went to him the following day, enclosing a copy of Ambassador MacVeagh's telegram and asking him whether any changes had been made in our position.

The President replied on June 30, simply enclosing paraphrases or extracts of the messages which had been exchanged between himself and Mr. Churchill.

These included the message to Mr. Churchill which he had drafted in the department and I had sent the President on June 17. He had dispatched this to the Prime Minister on June 22. In it he said that he was a bit worried and so was the state department concerning the Balkans. He said that frankly we were disturbed that the British took the matter up with us only after they had presented it to the Russians and the latter had asked whether we were agreeable to it. He said that in future he hoped matters of this importance could be prevented from developing in this way.

THE PRIME MINISTER replied on the following day, June 23, that he could not admit that he had done anything wrong. Three people in different parts of the world, he remarked, could not work together effectively if each had to keep the third informed of any suggestion to either of the others. He cited as an example the President's message about his conversations with the Premier Mikolajczyk of Poland, which the President had sent to "U.J." without informing Churchill about it. (The President and the prime minister occasionally used the designation "U.J." abbreviation for "Uncle Joe," in referring to Stalin.)

Mr. Roosevelt replied to this on June 26 by saying that it would seem to him that each of them had inadvertently taken independent steps in a direction which they both now agreed was for the time being expedient. He emphasized that it was essential that they should always be in accord on questions bearing on the Allied war effort. He forthwith sent Mr. Churchill a duplicate of the message he had sent Stalin concerning his conversation with Premier Mikolajczyk.

EVENTS FULLY JUSTIFIED the apprehensions we entertained over the Anglo-Russian arrangement which duly entered into effect following the President's acquiescence. When Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden went to Moscow in October, 1944, to see Stalin and Molotov, they extended the arrangement still further, even reducing to percentages the relative degree of influence which Britain and Russia individually should have in specified Balkan countries. Cables from our embassies in Moscow and Ankara mentioned that Russia would have a 75 75 or 50 20 predominance in Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania, while Britain and Russia would share influence in Yugoslavia 50-50. Later the Russians took it for granted that by the agreement of June, 1944, Britain and the United States had assigned them a certain portion of the Balkans including Romania and Bulgaria, as their sphere of influence. This assumption had its unforward effect at the Yalta conference in February, 1945.

Women's Group Observes 50th Anniversary Here

CHARTER members were honored and half a century of service to the church and community, observed by members of St. Mary Sewing circle when the members met Thursday night for a banquet and social hour at Hotel Harding. Honored as founders of the 50-year organization were Mrs. John Hogan, Mrs. Henry Yochem and Mrs. John A. Schroeter. Talks by the charter members were reminiscent of the early years of the group and in an informal talk Very Rev. William J. Spickerman, V. F., pastor of St. Mary Catholic church, paid tribute to the founders of the organization and expressed his appreciation of the loyalty and service of the members.

Seated with the honor guests and Rev. Spickerman were past presidents of the circle. The U-shaped table held a centerpiece of yellow roses and acacia and completing the decorations were low bowls filled with jonquils and acacia. Paneling the table were garlands of huckleberry foliage. Place cards were in gold and white and held miniature single roses. The honor guests were presented corsages of yellow roses and the past presidents received rosebuds. Mrs. E. J. Byrnes, president of the circle, presided.

Dinner music was by Miss Joyce Daum and Miss Claudine Scranton, pupils at St. Mary Parochial school. Miss Daum, accompanied at the piano by Miss Scranton sang "The Lord's Prayer," Malotte, "In My Garden," Firestone, "Last Night," Kjerulf, "Your Eyes Have Told Me So," Blaufuss and "Lullaby," Brahms.

Mrs. Edward J. Byrnes, president of the circle, presided and after extending a welcome presented the charter members and Rev. Spickerman. The charter members recalled work and social meetings of the organization and expressed their pleasure at being present for the happy occasion. Mrs. Hogan and Mrs. Yochem are past presidents of the circle, each having served 10 or more years. Rev. Spickerman expressed his appreciation of the work of the founders and those who carried it on throughout the years. In speaking of the anniversary celebration he added that it was a happy thought that the social life was not ignored in establishing the organization and carrying on its work. In the present age, he said we have so many duties, cares and activities, it is a good thing to meet and exchange leisurely recreations. A toast to the circle was given by Mrs. Albert Merkle.

Joining the circle for the occasion were two charter members who are no longer active, Mrs. Rosa Werley and Mrs. Mary Ellen Orians.

Mrs. Paul Meinerding of Columbus, daughter of Mrs. Valmore Major a former president of the circle, spoke briefly, and a card was read from Sister Vincent, of St. Mary convent in remembrance of her mother, Mrs. Edward Molloy. The members sent greetings to Mrs. William Munsell, a member of the club now making her home in Springfield.

Following the dinner bridge were fused for cards. An award for high score in euchre was won by Mrs. W. R. Martin, second went to Mrs. John Tucker. Mrs. Rose Werley received the pinochle award and Mrs. John Straub a special prize.

The idea for organizing a parish sewing circle originated with Mrs. Edward Huber, mother of Mrs. Schroeter, after she had attended a meeting of a similar group at the home of Mrs. Frank Ball in Galion. Catholic women here became interested and the first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Martin Kirchner whose home was on North Prospect street. Mrs. Huber was chosen the first president, and Mrs. Kirchner, vice president. The first sewing meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Huber, now deceased, by Mrs. Schroeter. The circle members now as members the years, take care of the altar linens and surplices, in addition to their charitable sewing and have established an enviable record in special services during the World Wars.

Succeeding Mrs. Huber as head of the organization were Mrs. Kirchner, Mrs. Patrick Kelly, Mrs. Valmore Major, Mrs. Walter Mackey, Mrs. Albert Reidenbaugh, Mrs. John Hogan, Mrs. Henry Yochem, Mrs. Carl Baisinger and Mrs. Albert Merkle. Meetings were first held in the Knights of Columbus rooms and later taken to St. Mary community house on North Prospect street.

Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Albert Merkle, general chairman, Mrs. Mary Goss and Mrs. Thomas Powers were in charge of decorations and the social hour was arranged by Mrs. Robert Henry, Mrs. William Mahaffey and Mrs. Clifford Mitchell. Guests included Mrs. Paul Meinerding of Columbus and Mrs. C. J. Ortner of Utica, N. Y.

For the program, Miss Neva Swope spoke on her experiences in Germany, and Mrs. Goldie Swope played several accordion numbers. She was attired in a hand made Bavarian costume made especially for her by a German peasant girl. Guests were Mrs. Don Creviston, Mrs. Francis Roush and Mrs. Harry Hammond.

Dr. Rhu's Long and Notable Life

HAD Dr. Auguste Rhu lived through only the normal average span of years allotted to man the record of his life would have been one of distinction for from the beginning his career was one of noteworthy accomplishment.

But when he died yesterday at the age of 98, merely to say that his life and achievements were noteworthy would have been an inadequate appraisal. The passing of time had not levied against him the toll taken from most men and the result was that his was an active life of valuable service even in its closing years.

Virtually ever since the dawn of recorded history the human race has sought to learn the "secret" of long and happy lives. With Dr. Rhu it was obviously not a secret, and the story of his life indicates that it need not be a secret to others. This does not mean that Dr. Rhu had some magic formula which made possible for him years on earth far beyond the average. It means rather that throughout his life he made full and proper use of the body and mind given him.

He acquired cultural and professional schooling early in life but that was only the beginning of his mental enrichment and development. He read and studied extensively through all his many years, not only in his profession of medicine and surgery, in which he gained notable recognition, but in religion, music, the theater, national and world affairs, and other important spheres of activity. So his mind was always alert and refreshed, never dulled by lack of interest and exercise.

Needless to say, his mode of living gave him physical vitality essential to maintaining mental vigor and activity.

He enjoyed meeting people and they enjoyed meeting him, for he was always cheerful and courteous and an exceptionally interesting conversationalist.

Thus was made possible a long and exceptionally full life, the sort of life virtually all men would like to live, but which few achieve because they fail to find enjoyment in the things which serve best in keeping minds and bodies refreshed, healthful and invigorated.

No Cinch for Mr. Truman

IF THE major political event of 1948 is going to be the collapse of the coalition brought together under Franklin D. Roosevelt, with a Republican sweep at the polls in November thereby made certain, the renomination of Mr. Truman at the Democratic national convention next July is not a certainty.

Rather than risk a national election with their party crippled by the loss of southern electoral support for Mr. Truman, as the governor of Virginia has proposed, Democrats might decide before convention time to look for a new candidate. They have evidence from the Bronx that the strategy of affronting the South to please the North isn't working; Mr. Truman merely has offended both of them.

In circumstances that make victory in a given presidential election unlikely, the usual political strategy is to build for the future. This is the possibility many Democrats are beginning to think of as they weigh their party's chances in 1948. If they do decide to make the best of a bad situation by rebuilding from the ruins of collapsing coalition built by Mr. Roosevelt, it's doubtful if Mr. Truman would be regarded as the ideal builder. Whatever may be his present standing with the public in general, his standing with the leaders of his party is reaching new lows day by day.

Huey Long Would Be Pleased

NO STATE has more tumultuous political campaigns than Louisiana, which has just run off a gubernatorial primary amid charges of corruption, libel suits and incandescent oratory. As expected, the victor was Earl K. Long, the late Huey's brother, whose nomination, equivalent to election, ends eight years of "reform" government.

Earl Long returns to the office he held briefly in 1939 when Richard Leche, the heir to Huey's throne, was arrested for misuse of public funds. The previous Long administration and the Louisiana scandals of the 1930's are so far in the past that they no longer fill the Bayou country with a gamy odor. As a result Earl Long, aided by Huey's son, Russell, is making a comeback. Since Louisiana governors aren't allowed to succeed themselves, Russell, who'll be 32 in 1952, will be ready to assume his uncle's mantle by that time.

All the reasons for Louisiana's rough-and-tumble one-party political fights aren't comprehensible to outlanders. Something in the air down there, or in the state's heritage, makes Louisianans particularly susceptible to spectacular rabble-rousers. They have decided to give the long type of government another chance. If they have occasion to rue the day, there'll be none to blame but themselves.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Our Representation in China.

FOR some reason, not understandable, President Truman, in 1946, appointed an aged missionary, Dr. Leighton Stuart, as the American ambassador to China. He followed a long line of extraordinary competent men, John Van Antwerp MacMurray, Nelson T. Johnson, Clarence E. Gauss. These men knew China, were fine linguists with a history, its traditions, its personalities. MacMurray was one of the leading experts of his time in China's international relations, probably only [illegible] Dr. Wellington Koo, ambassador of Republican China to the Court of St. James's, was a graduate of Columbia University and had been associated with the late department. The last of men of such caliber was Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, who held the post under various titles from 1928 to 1944, but whose influence waned as the New Dealers became more influential in the control of our foreign policy. In his place appeared a cabal of intriguing young men who served not the national interest but their private opinion. The Far Eastern section of the state department became a private club of smart boys.

To China were sent General Pat Hurley, General Joe Stilwell, General George Marshall, General Wedemeyer and the ancient missionary, Dr. Leighton Stuart. Pat Hurley, with his sense of practical politics, saw the picture as it is, namely, that the enemy is Soviet Russia and that the Chinese Communists would sooner or later be instructed to make the United States. He did not elevate Chiang Kai-shek into an angel of supreme purity, he knew him as the inevitable ally of the United States. That was all that could be required.

Stilwell's Attitude

General Joe Stilwell was only himself. He wanted to run the show. He was used to running any show he was appointed to run. The fact that China had a government of its own, an army, a general staff, the further fact that the Chinese, in their primitive way, had managed to withstand and to rout Japanese for more years than Stilwell was a general, did not interest "Vinegar" Joe. He told Chiang Kai-shek to hand over his army—which in war meant the entire country—to him. Chiang told him to clear out. China has survived many Stilwells in its 4,000 years of history.

So along came General George Marshall. He brought the light of the ages: love thine enemy. No one can question the vitality of the adage, except that Chiang Kai-shek had tried it on and off since 1925. Chiang has had a long experience of trying to do business with Russia and its agents, the Chinese Communists. As a matter of fact, China has had a longer experience since the treaty of Nerchinsk (1689). But George Marshall thought he would try his hand at it.

Didn't Like Chiang

He stayed in China more than a year and took a violent dislike to Chiang Kai-shek and the Kuomintang. They reminded him of Boss Hague of New Jersey, Ed Flynn of the Bronx, Boss Crump of Memphis, Boss Kelly of Chicago, Harry Hopkins, George Allen, and lots of other American politicians. He apparently preferred the Chinese Communists because he did not know them. So he came away a complete failure. He blamed Chiang Kai-shek for that. Of course, he might have read some history and he might have known that it is ever thus.

General Weidemeyer went over and made a report which is still secret. Many rumors are afloat as to what the report contains, including the absurdity that Manchuria, which Russia is stealing from China, be internationalized. The general impression, however, is that Wedemeyer proposed that we back Chiang Kai-shek with full military support, so that we may more successfully kill Chinese Communists who are agents of the all-conquering Soviet Russia.

And then there is the aged Leighton Stuart, who apparently does not know what has happened in Romania, Hungary, western Germany, northern Korea, and Czechoslovakia and who still believes that sweetness and light will triumph in the sweet by-and-by. So he wants Chiang Kai-shek and Stalin to kiss and make up.

That is the kind of representation we have been having in China.

Black Coffee and Light Verse?

In Cleveland, a lady psychologist suggests that housewives get their husbands off to a good start each day by reciting a poem at breakfast.

Is Longfellow going to replace orange-juice as the great American eye-opener"

The really ingenious little woman, one supposes, will suit her verse to the occasion, reciting "The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck" with the toast and "Drink To Me Only with Thine Eyes" as she brings in what passes for coffee.

Mayb I'm just old-fashioned, but I'd rather have my eggs with Bacon than Benet.

The average man wants Service for breakfast . . . and he doesn't mean Robert W.

Keats and Shelley may be inspirational, but there's a lot more nourishment in oatmeal.

When you get up in the morning with an appetite, it's for wheatcakes from the griddle . . . and not Sonnets from the Portuguese.

The Wriggling President

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON

THE perfectly sound, perfectly indecisive legal brief on Palestine which Senator Warren Austin presented to the UN security council reflected one thing and one thing only—Harry S. Truman's own agonized indecision.

The Presidential wriggling to escape the horns of his dilemma has been so desperate that he put off approving even this facing-both-ways statement until after his ill-timed departure for the Virgin Islands. It was in the islands, on Sunday, that he finally gave his belated approval. His telegram reached Washington so late on Monday that the state department had to cancel plans for a very necessary briefing of the press on the legal niceties of this vital declaration of American purposes.

What is still more extraordinary, the Austin statement actually seems to mask a continuing refusal to grasp either of the horns of the Palestine dilemma. There is in the statement a kind of beginning of a policy. This country will not impose partition by force. But it will join in any United Nations effort to safeguard international peace and security. And it wishes the nature of this effort to be determined by a special commission of the old UN big five—Britain, France, China, the Soviet Union and the United States—under Article 106 of the UN charter.

Next Step Undecided

This is only the beginning of a policy for two very simple reasons. The President has not resolved the differences within the administration over the next step in Palestine we shall press for [illegible] the opening of the settlement under the guise of maintaining international peace.

More to the point still, the President has not resolved the even more pressing differences over the implementation of whatever decision the UN may arrive. No matter what the decision, some kind of international force will be needed in Palestine. This force must be mainly either American, or Russian, or both. There is no [illegible] American blueprint for such a force.

The source of the President's indecision is easy to discern—all [illegible] to natives now really open to [illegible] almost unthinkable. Yet the necessity of reopening the Palestine settlement means public [illegible] sulting political repercussions. Doing nothing at all means letting the Jews be pushed into the sea. And taking responsibility for enforcement of the UN general assembly's recommendations means asking congress for authority to send an American force to Palestine, perhaps partial national mobilizaton in order to provide such a force, and risking a resulting sordid outbreak of racial feeling in this country.

On the lower echelons, opinion has been so divided that one cannot say that any special group advocated any special line of policy. Published reports have been misleading, however, concerning the highest policy-making level below the President.

In the first place, the chief policy-makers of the state department would, on all the evidence, probably have preferred a much more definite choice of the third alternative outlined above than the Austin statement represents. The reasoning behind this state department preference for effective enforcement of the partition plan was that when the situation is really bad—as the Palestine situation is—it is always the worst course to waver or to appease. The oldest rule of politics is that boldness invariably offers the best way out of a tough spot.

Manpower Problem

Again, the position of the armed services departments has also been misrepresented. The vital importance of Middle Eastern oil has bulked large in their thinking. But far more important has been the problem of manpower.

The ground forces are now more than 100,000 men under complement. The whole disposable reserve of United States ground troops is composed of the equivalent of about two divisions of Marines, plus two divisions of the regular Army, plus air and naval units in proportion. The services have cautiously argued that since the British have failed to keep order in Palestine with 90,000 men, this whole disposable American reserve might well have to be committed by us. Therefore they have demanded either partial mobilization, or some kind of limited selective service act, as the necessary accompaniment of any American attempt to enforce a Palestine settlement. Without this supplement of manpower, they have pointed out, they might conceivably find themselves unable to meet emergencies, either in Palestine, or Greece, or Italy or elsewhere.

Belgium Got 18,625 U.S. Autos Last Year

We United Suckers

By Frank Tripp

AUTHORITIES say that there's plenty of oil in the ground but the greatly increasing demand for it exceeds the present production.

So the shivering householder asks, then why ship oil out of the country?

A profound answer comes back in terms the people are in no position to dispute: that there are both imports and exports to be considered. That we wouldn't get crude imports if we shut off refined exports — or vice versa, as the case may be. Besides we might offend somebody.

TRIPP

Then comes word of Russia's anti-American activities in the Persian Gulf oil country where American interests in oil are great and expectations greater.

Our pals from Moscow are down there yelling, "throw the foreign infidels out." That means us.

One is a foreigner and an infidel according to where he happens to be. A foreigner is a man away from home; an infidel is an unbeliever in the other fellow's god.

Americans are too likely to deny that they are foreigners or infidels in anybody's eyes. The One World era and the gift of our shirts off our backs will never erase the fact that we can be and are both in many places—and unpopular almost everywhere.

While we modernize to overconsume our native oil production, others seek to control or withhold from us foreign production upon which our oil-conversion program might eventually depend.

No product is more important than oil for either war or defense. The appearance of Russian treachery in the foreign oil picture can have only one meaning to Americans.

They plot exclusion of our interests in important oil sources which we have developed for years.

Therefore the lay American's attitude is reasonable: that wherever exports do not immediately bring back, barrel for barrel, equal exchange, we are saps to let a gallon of oil get out of this country.

Let's look at the record. I was in Manchuria when Japan, then landlord of that country, fixed herself up nicely with American oil.

The Japs insisted upon going into partnership, with any "foreign infidels" who did business in what Nippon then called Manchukuo — China's Manchuria, stolen in 1932.

For every drop of oil that foreigners sold in Manchuria they had to deliver to the Jap-controlled government a like amount to go into storage. Great stocks of oil resulted.

This was part of the oil with which Japan built, developed and flew the planes that visited Pearl Harbor that December morning.

Japan was woefully weak in oil sources, but she was smart. Every Jap ship that touched an oilproducing country carried an oil capacity for at least one and one-half round trips away from the home port, usually more.

For example, the big marus touching Los Angeles filled there with 3,000 tons of oil. That would take them home, bring them back to Los Angeles and still leave plenty to get back to Japan again, if by chance they couldn't refill with our oil. But they always could, thus saved their own stocks.

And with our oil they toted away so much of our scrap iron that we had to melt up heirlooms when we needed some—remember!

For all oil we sold over there we delivered equal volume to go in their war reserve tanks. That protected our exports.

When we got the compensating imports back they came by plane. They brought our scrap iron with them and dropped it on our heads.

Upon the heads of the good old U S A—the United Suckers of America.

Just a Matter of Faces

(Henry Wallace tells congress that all that needed to bring an understanding with Russia was a change of faces in Washington.—News item.)

Simply get a change of faces—
That will solve all global woes
We can get in Stalin's graces
By the faces we disclose
Joe's a very lonely fellow
And will set a peaceful pace
With an oh, so sweet and mellow
If he only likes a face.

II

Russia isn't interfering
With a country anywhere;
In a manner most endearing
She is playing extra fair;
And the press is simply lying
When it says this ain't the case.
For it knows for peace Joe's trying—
But can't find the proper face.

III

Stalin is misrepresented
And our papers are unfair,
And they make Joe discontented,
Getting deeply in his hair;
Why do not the papers bother
To report the simple truth?
We can win him like a brother
By presenting that new look.

IV

All those Balkan interventions
Poland's sufferings and such
Fie upon all foul contentions
That they have a ruthless touch!
Stalin's really very gentle
And for peace he would come through—
If he'd say, with smile quite dental,
Look, we have a face that's new!

V

What? The Czechs have just been swallowed?
Well, I would not talk on that;
All those press reports you've followed
Are but pipedreams foul and flat;
Nothing really is the matter
That a new face won't fix fine
Save the world and make woes scatter
With a face, say just like mine!

Wallace: I don't think any one can determine the extent of Russian intervention in the affairs of other countries.

Rep. Mundt: But you would agree that Russia is intervening to some extent, would you not?

Wallace: I would assume she is from what I read in the American press, but I don't believe it is possible to get the truth in the American press.

All those reports of Russia meddling in a degree in the Balkans, Italy, France, Poland and Greece are, of course, without foundation. But how do you suppose the papers ever got the idea Russia was interfering with Czecho Slovakia, wee bit?

The Blue-Eyed Vote

By TRUMAN TWILL

Sometimes politics gets to be hard to explain to a child studying civics, but this is a general idea, sonny:—

There are different kinds of politics and politicians, just as there are different kinds of people—big ones, little ones, good ones and bad ones.

It just so happens that the shock of bad apple into a bad apple makes it hard to think about the good apples for a while, which is why politicians do not have as good a reputation as they should have in a country that depends on them for decent government. Too many people think all apples are bad.

But remember this, sonny: Not all politicians are the same. And remember another thing: Not all voters are the same. Some voters think about the good of the whole country, instead of just about their own pet peeves and projects. That's the kind of a voter you should try to be when you grow up, sonny.

Because there always will be some politicians who will try to get your vote by seeming to agree with your pet peeves and projects. You have a few. Everybody does. The trick is to keep them from seeming more important than the good of the whole country.

For example, you have blue eyes. When you get old enough to vote for a politician—and one might claim: "Look, I am for blue-eyed people 100 per cent. I think they are hot stuff. Therefore, I am in favor of putting all brown-eyed, black-eyed and green-eyed people behind the 8-ball. In fact, I will go further than that and put them behind the 8-ball if they have brown-eyed, black-eyed or green-eyed grandparent. Can I have your vote on that kind of a proposition?"

Of course you will say no. You'll be smart enough to realize that the color of a voter's eyes doesn't have anything to do with the welfare of the United States. You will learn about a lot of other things that bad politicians promote—minorities which have nothing to do with the good of the country either—such as prejudice to people whose skin is a certain color, to people who speak a certain language and to people who belong to a certain religious group.

It's too bad that not all voters are alert to this and that not all the voters who are alert have enough courage to tell the bad politicians to go jump in the lake. It's the most dangerous thing that could happen. It's the one thing that could wreck America if voters don't stop to it themselves. It's not the bad politicians who are to blame, but voters who support them and refuse to support good politicians who want to. America is too fine to be ruined by a lot of punks with pet peeves and projects. You be a good voter, sonny, and support the good politicians. Now run along and study your civics lesson for tomorrow.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE CROSS

Ephesians 3:18. " . . . Able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height."

AS THE PASTOR left, the aunt said to him: "We believe he would Live if he had a transfusion of blood." The next day the transfusion was given. The waxen face of the boy began to show signs of color, as did his fingers. The child completely recovered.

At the next communion service the pastor served this young boy and as the words were uttered: "This is His broken body and his shed blood," he saw what he had never seen before—that blood is life. This child would have died without it.

No one can fathom it, but as we stand beneath the cross of Jesus we realize that here is God's great transfusion for a dying world. To refuse what God offers in the cross is to perish. To accept it is to live. "This is the breadth and length of the love of God which passeth knowledge."

The Christian Good Neighbor

A Sermonette

By REV. H. V. FALOR

Pastor of Oakland Evangelical United Brethren Church

Text: Luke 10:36, "Which now of these . . . was neighbor unto him that fell among the thieves?"

• • •

CHRIST has answered the vital question, "Who is my neighbor?" with the dramatic and practical parable of the good Samaritan. Real neighborliness is one of our modern world's greatest needs. It is also one of Christianity's most genuine and helpful fruits. There is not the slightest room for selfishness and hate in Christ's will for you.

I. THE PITIABLE VICTIM

The experience of this traveling man who was attacked by thieves, robbed, stripped and severely wounded is duplicated repeatedly and in manifold ways today. From the level of individual relationships to that of international practices, the ruthless, brutal bandit philosophy which says "What is thine is mine, if I can take it," brazenly parades itself. We see it in prevalent materialism that crowds out God, in ever increasing waves of crime, in growing liquor consumption, in governmental spendthrift policies; in international practices that violate human personality and disregard personal property rights, and bring ever increasing numbers into the shackles of human slavery. These are days when this thievery of life is carried on on a most magnanimous scale. It evidences a spirit which is farthest removed from the true neighborly love which is a vital part of eternal life in God.

II. THE PITYLESS PASSER-BY

The providence of God brought the priest and the Levite down that road where the victim was waiting to be helped. His need was very apparent. The needs of our fellowmen, near and far, are perpetually challenging us. But we, like the priest and Levite, too often say by our actions, "What is mine is my own, and I must keep it for my own comfort." It is so easy to presume that we owe nothing to our needy brothers. Being so expert in this business of excuse-making, we too "pass by on the other side." There are always before us the two sides in life—the side where men are needy and dying, and the other side. You must choose your side. To take the neighborly side will often shock our sensibilities, and interrupt our speed and tax our resources, but it will greatly bless and enrich our lives.

III. THE PAID INN-KEEPER

Little is said about the innkeeper in this parable. But enough is mentioned to reveal that all he did he was paid for doing. How like that purely commercial and professional attitude of today which says by its manifestations "What is mine is thine, if you pay for it." We admire the wisdom and forethought which spread layers of coal and layers of iron ore near each other in the crust of the earth so that the one might give the melting heat which the other needs. The same Divine wisdom has appointed each meeting between those persons who are in want and those who have abundance, and for the same reason—that the one might give what the other needs, and that both may be blessed in the deed. God is grieved and dishonored when we who have of His grace and love and substance, withhold them when confronted with golden opportunities to serve real needs of our brothers. Too often we respond only when remunerated for our efforts. The uncounted millions of our generation who are so destitute of physical and spiritual bread are neighbors whom we dare not, for Christ's sake, pass by.

IV. THE PITIFUL (Full of Pity) SAMARITAN

This Samaritan alone of all the characters mentioned in this parable had the true Christian outlook on life. By his actions he said, "What is mine is thine, if you need it." He actually ministered to the man's every need. The oil, the wine, the bandages, the beast, the inn, the pence, the care, are all only so many forms of his large-hearted compassion. "He had compassion on him." Compassion is love in action toward the suffering and needy. God would have you, too, to be motivated by compassion that inquires not, hesitates not, fears not, tarries not, willing sacrifices, and leaves nothing undone. Nothing less than Christ's redeeming grace will make that compassion a reality in you. It begets that practical love which makes man neighbor to man, and includes all men regardless of race or creed. Without it even those who live next door to us or attend our church are not our true neighbors. With it those in the remotest parts of the earth are our neighbors.

Episcopal Bishop On Radio Sunday

The congregation of St. Paul's Episcopal church will join tomorrow with Episcopal congregations throughout the United States, composed of over a million persons, in hearing a radio broadcast by the presiding bishop of the church, the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, in an appeal for funds for reconstruction in war-torn countries. Rev. Frederick W. Leech, rector of St. Paul's church here, stated that the radio equipment has been set up so that everything will be in order that at the specified instant, exactly 11:32½ a. m., the presiding bishop will be heard by what is expected to be a capacity crowd. The bishop will speak from New York.

The Episcopal campaign is believed to be the first important relief effort of this year by any church, and it is the only church campaign ever to be inaugurated with the assistance of such an extraordinary radio arrangement, those in charge report.

Episcopal church leaders explain that "while government and secular relief agencies can reduce physical want and produce basic essentials of life, such agencies can not attempt to offer the spiritual vitality so lacking in the war-disrupted countries. Only the church can do this."

Some Instructions on Chair Repairs

The average chair follows a very plain and sensible design which furniture-makers have found good. Usually a chair is composed of two back legs which continue upward to form the side-pieces of the back, and are joined to the front legs by a frame which is doweled or mortised into the legs.

Barring accidents or plain breakage, a chair will last and be solid just as long as this frame stays solidly together. We have had a lot of experience with chairs and have bought some old pieces which we later found had been recovered four and five times. One chair in particular had a badly dried out and frayed leather seat-cover. When we removed it we found a tapestry covering beneath the leather; under that we found a faded damask, and finally got down to the original old velvet. Allowing eight or ten years apiece for the various coverings, the frame must have been 40 years old and was still as solid as a rock.

As a rule a chair will start to break up by becoming loose where the back legs join the frame which connects the legs. Next the rungs will loosen, and then the front legs. If you take steps to tighten the chair immediately, you will stop the trouble in its tracks.

The first thing to do is to upend the chair on a table, and remove the bottom covering, if any. In each corner (if you have a good chair) you will find small, wooden "corner blocks" which are fastened in place with screws as illustrated. Take out the screws, sand the ends of the blocks and the inside of the seat frame where they touch it, and coat with good carpenter's glue (not with mucilage). Next, run a bit of glue over the threads of the screws, and replace them in the same holes in the blocks and tighten the blocks in place as you found them. Use a heavy screwdriver and turn up the screws as tight as you can. Leave the chair up-ended for several days in a dry room so that the glue will set properly.

You do not have to be very practical or mechanical-minded to see exactly what these small corner-blocks mean to the chair assembly. They are the most important item in the construction as they bind the chair together and take the strain off the joints where the legs are doweled into the frame. If they are kept tight you should have a solid chair and usually one which will not complain when it is used.

RADIATOR VALVES

If radiators do not heat all the way across, there is probably an obstruction in the valve, and the valve should be replaced.

COLD WALLS

Scientists have found that uninsulated walls are as much as 11 degrees colder than interior air, his sets up drafts and produces a chilly feeling. Insulation will bring such surfaces to within 3 or 3 degrees of the air temperature, reduce drafts and save fuel.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Heavy Moisture in House

Q. We are bothered with excess moisture in our house. The water streams down our window panes. We have mineral wool insulation in the attic, and storm sash on some of the windows. We use gas heat. We painted the interior of the house in '46, and in less than a year the paint started peeling off clear to the wood. Can you help us?

A. If you are burning gas in room or water heaters that are not connected to a vent, that would be one reason for the moisture. Gas (and oil) produce great quantities of vapor when burning, and this vapor should be vented outdoors. If you have no finished basement, only a dirt floor in the cellar space, you should either plan to lay a waterproof concrete floor or else insulate the under side of the first-flooring. The windows should all have storm sash, and it should be well fitted. A leaflet on eliminating dampness is being sent to you.

"Sound-Conditioning"

Q. I have recently converted my home into a two-family, and am using the dining room as a bedroom. It doesn't work out too well, as I can hear walking overhead and the floor has a squeak in it. Is there anything to do?

A. There are large companies that specialize in "sound-conditioning," as they call it, otherwise known as "sound-proofing." But a complte job of soundproofing can only be done through reconstruction. The following method, however, will give fair results. Put up a false ceiling, supporting it on a framework running from wall to wall, but out of contact with the old ceiling. Then put blanket insulation between the two-by-fours of the false ceiling, which should be covered by an insulating board or a gypsum wallboard. An additional help would be to lay a felt rug cushion (moth proof) over the noisy floor upstairs, to be covered with thick carpeting. If you intend to take care of the squeaky floor, this work should be done first. A leaflet on this work is being sent to you.

Discolored Shower Tile

Q. Can you tell me what to do to remove the discoloration of the tile floor of the shower? The whole bathroom has the same kind of tile, but only the stall shower becomes discolored. None of my household cleaners will remedy this. What can I use?

A. I doubt if that hard-water scale can be entirely removed, but try the following: Make a paste by mixing a scratchless scouring powder with kerosene. Let the paste remain on the tile for a while before scouring it off. Washing with soap and water should follow. You could also try a porcelain cleaning preparation, on sale in many stores. In the future, each time the shower is used, it might help to clean it well and wipe it dry, so that the hard-water will not have a chance to dry on the tile and form a hard scale. Have you though of installing a water softening unit?

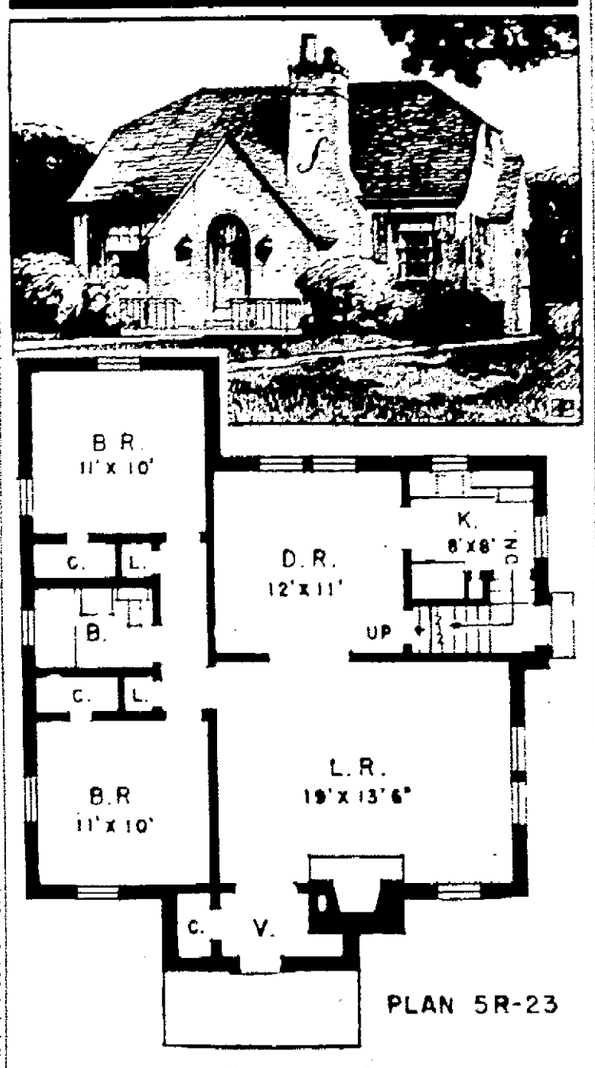
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



PLAN 5R-23

By The Associated Press

An English heritage in the American scene is reflected in this plan 5 R-23 by Elmer Gylleck, architect, 120½ South Grove avenue, Elgin, Ill. Low sweeping roof lines and interesting chimney design add to an appearance of hospitality. The house is of brick veneer. The trim should be of light brown with a variegated brown wood or asphalt shingle roof. With a full basement the house contains 20,000 cubic feet. The main portion of the house measures 27x32 with an added wing at the rear and at its front entrance.

Body of Baby Found In College Dormitory

By The Associated Press

HAMILTON, O., Feb. 28—The finding of a baby girl's decomposed body in a dormitory storage room at Western College for Women is due for grand jury consideration, Butler county Coroner Garret Boone reported last night.

Dr. Boone, revealing the body was found Feb. 4 by a house mother at the college in neighboring Oxford, said an 18-year-old freshman from Wheaton, Ill., had made an oral statement at a formal inquest that she was the mother of the child.

"I'm turning over my report of the inquest to the grand jury," Dr. Boone asserted. "It will be up to the jury to decide whether or not legal action should be taken."

The infant's body was so badly decomposed, the coroner said, it was not possible to determine whether or not it had lived.

by veterans and other organizations will be available to local veterans daily at the times specified for an indefinite period depending on the continuing demands of the veterans for these services.

Beginning Monday night at 7 p. m. National Guard members who are veterans may obtain assistance at the armory.

OSES Office To Help

For a two-week period starting March 1, veterans may secure all necessary assistance in preparing their applications at the offices of the Ohio State Employment Service, from 5 until 9 p. m. each weekday evening and from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. on Saturday. The Red Cross will be prepared to assist veterans with their applications any time during the day beginning Tuesday.

Beginning Tuesday morning veterans may obtain assistance in processing their forms at the Army Recruiting station, South Main street, from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. daily.

Veterans organization service officers are advised by Mr. Schwartz that additional application forms will be available to them in bulk lots at both the County Veterans Service offices and at the Red Cross, should their organization supplies become depleted.

All notaries public and typists in the county wishing to volunteer assistance to the veterans organizations or the county service office are asked to contact Mr. Schwartz at the county veterans service offices where their services will be welcomed.

Lost Discharges

Certificates in lieu of a lost discharge may be secured by veterans by applying at the Veterans Administration where arrangements have been completed to obtain rapid service for local veterans lacking their original discharge.

The schedule of arrival of the bonus application forms today by the state bonus headquarters in Columbus set the arrival time of the application blanks at Marion at 12 noon March 1. Other county seats in the district will receive their allotment of forms at the following hours: Wyandot county at Upper Sandusky at 10 a. m.; Hardin county at Kenton at 10:30 a. m.; Crawford county at Bucyrus at 11 a. m.; Morrow county at Mt. Gilead at 11 a. m.; Delaware county at Delaware and Union county at Marysville, both at 12 noon.

his birthday, his mother said, and has received congratulations from various friends.

Happier This Time

Mrs. Amick feels that this birthday will be happier than the one which she had in 1944, because at that time her husband, then in service, was at Fort Meade, Md., and was to go overseas. His safe return was welcomed with joy by his wife and daughter, Linda Lou, in September, 1945. The four years have brought a separation however, from a special friend, also a leap-year birthday celebrant, Mrs. Eleanor Cowan Harwood. In 1944 they celebrated their birthdays here together, as they had in high school days when they were both students at Harding High school. Mrs. Hardwood is now living at Clarksville, Ark., and is the mother of a young daughter. During the war years she was a member of the Waves.

Mr. Sprow's birthday dinner at his home will be attended by a number of relatives and friends, including Bucyrus residents. In advance, a family dinner for him was held last Sunday, also. There will be a special birthday cake for him, Mrs. Sprow said. Mr. Sprow, at 68, is still "going strong," as active as ever at his job as wholesale grocery distributor.

A family dinner will be held Sunday in celebration of the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Fields, at the home of Mrs. Fields' sister, Mrs. Lloyd Mautz on Sunmit street. The occasion will be in honor also of the eighty-second birthday anniversary of their father, B. C. Adams of Caledonia, which is Monday, March 1.

ments with non-party President Edvard Benes, forcing the latter to accept the new cabinet Wednesday.

Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk was "on call" to confer this morning. Masaryk is a holdover from the old cabinet, like Gottwald, and son of Czechoslovakia's first president, the late Thomas G. Masaryk.

The Communist newspaper Rude Pravo said, however, he had been visited by M. S. Bodrov, Soviet charge d'affaires. It said Bodrov conveyed to him the thanks of the Russian government for the stand taken by Polish, Yugoslav and Czechoslovak foreign ministers in a recent conference here on Germany.

The foreign ministers said any merger of the western zones of Germany would carry a danger of war. Their declaration referred to a London conference on western Germany arranged by the United States, Great Britain and France. This conference started Monday.)

President Benes installed the Communist-packed cabinet yesterday at his residence, Hradcany palace.

Later yesterday he and his wife left Prague for their country home at Sezimmovo Usti.

Photographs of the cabinet ceremony showed the president glumly shaking hands with Gottwald. The latter was half-smiling.

INCOME TAX TIME

Understand Exemptions When You Make Your Tax Return

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb 28 — Watch your exemptions in filing your 1947 income tax return.

For each exemption you deduct $500 from your total income before what's left is taxed.

You get a $500 exemption for:

1 Yourself, always, whether single or married.

2 Your wife, if she had no income of her own or is filing a joint return with you.

3 Each dependent.

When a married man and wife file separate returns he can claim his own $500 exemption and she can't.

If the husband had no income but the wife had a salary because she did, she claims his $500 exemption, plus $500 for herself.

James Marlow

A dependent is any close relative, of any age, who got more than half his support from you in 1947 and had less than $500 income of his own.

Can you claim as a dependent a person who had some income? Yes, but only if it was under $500. If it was under $500 he doesn't have to file a return. And—

Even though he turned over all of that less-than-$500 income, you don't have to report it but can claim a full $500 exemption for him.

You can't claim as a dependent any one who had $500 or more income even though he received more than half his support from you.

ANY PERSON with $500 or more income must file a tax return and take his own $500 exemption.

For example: You gave two sons $500 each and Joe, and his wife, gave several hundred dollars to put them through school. In 1947 John had $499 income and Joe had $500.

You can claim John as a dependent. He doesn't file a return. You don't report his income on your return. But you can claim Joe. He had $500 income. He must file a return and claim his own $500 exemption. You can't claim him as a dependent even though you contribute to more than half his support.

You can claim three people as dependents.

Your child or grandchild; a stepchild but not his children; a legally adopted child, a brother, sister, stepbrother, stepsister, parent, grandparents or other ancestor; your stepfather, stepmother, aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews; all related by blood and your in-laws: father-mother-sister-brother-son-daughter-in-law.

YOU CAN CLAIM as a dependent for the full year a child born to you at any time in 1947 as Dec 31.

What of a dependent who dies during the year? You can claim him for the full year if he died in 1947 as early as Jan 1, 1947.

For example: If a child was born to you on Jan 1, 1947, or any time up through Dec 31, 1947 and lived only a few minutes and then died, you can claim him as a dependent. You can not claim as a dependent a stillborn child.

You don't do any arithmetic with exemptions when you file a return on Form W-2, the withholding statement, or the 1040 short-form.

The tax on both forms is figured in a tax table. Just list your exemptions on them. The table allows for each exemption of the person filing a return on those two forms.

When you file on the 1040 long-form, you subtract your total exemptions from your total income before applying the tax to what's then left of that income. You have to work out your tax on the long-form.

SERVICEMEN'S WIVES should remember:

The pay of enlisted men and non-commissioned officers is tax-free. So those who had no other income don't file a return.

If you're married to a serviceman who had no income but service pay, you can claim a $500 exemption for him, if you're filing a return because you had income of $500 or more of your own.

The first $1,500 pay of a commissioned officer is tax-exempt, too. So he doesn't have to file a return unless he had $2,000 or more in service pay. For example:

Suppose he had $1,999.99 in service pay. He doesn't file a return. Suppose he had $2,000 in service pay. He must file a return on that $500 over the tax-exempt first $1,500.

Suppose he had $1,999.99 in service pay, plus $1,000 from an outside source. That's a total of $1,499.99 over his tax-exempt first $1,500. He must file a return on that $1,499.99.

Next: Deductions.

Roving Reports

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

AMERICA may fight one war at a time—but European powers tend to have the next one always in mind.

That is why Soviet leaders asked that United States forces halt in 1945, so that Russian troops alone might have the glory of capturing Berlin and freeing Prague, the capital of Czechoslovakia.

And that is one reason why Czechoslovakia today is wearing the new political look—with a Made in Moscow label clearly stamped.

For nearly three years Soviet propaganda has drummed in the theme that Russian troops saved Prague while the Americans stopped in Pilsen 50 miles away.

Hal Boyle

This was in the closing days of the war. Prague patriots were fighting the Nazis in the streets. Delegations slipped through the lines to Pilsen to seek American help. I was there and saw American officers and men volunteer to go.

The answer was "no." The Russians had asked that the Third army halt at Pilsen and wait for the Soviet troops to link up with them. An order came down from higher headquarters breaking the American columns.

It was useless to try to explain to the pleading Czechs. They knew only that the Americans could have come to the defense of Prague and didn't—and that the Russians did.

But lest the present absentee landlords of Czechoslovakia think a new totalitarianism can subdue the people Hitler couldn't break, I'd like to reprint here portions of a dispatch I filed from Pilsen on May 7, 1945.

IT DESCRIBES the first homecoming parade of Czech soldiers who had fought for years with the British army—and now again were under their own red, white and blue flag.

"There were only a few of them—one company of tired and dusty men who hadn't seen their native land since before Dunkerque, where they fought with valor. Czechoslovakia's second largest city gave them a conqueror's welcome.

"They were a symbol of free Czechoslovakia—the little country of greatness, proud, democratic and progressive."

"They came into Pilsen behind General Patton's American troops.

"Czech crowds loyally cheered every Yank. But you could feel they were waiting for something—something they hadn't seen for years. A Czech army marching through a Czech city under its own flag.

"Shortly before dusk word swept through the crowds that the Czech troops had entered the city. A few moments later the first car rolled into the city square.

"It was a hectic, many-hour demonstrations but none like the peculiar mixture that these oppressed people selected as their first full day of liberty. The column contained only about 50 cars—a few jeeps, some Bren carriers, civilian cars and a few wagons. But here at the head, decked with flowers and garlands, were German tanks on a move destined in 15 minutes.

BUT, AS A SYMBOL, that column was matchless. A cry burst from every throat as the first vehicle entered the public area and as each car turned past the volume grew greater.

"It wasn't shouting like the yells of an American crowd. This sound was compounded of sadness and exhilaration and pride and hope, too. It sang in the ears like a strong wind pushing across tumultuous surf.

"Old men and women who have seen the glory and death of two world wars went together. And young girls and children seeing them were moved, and wept, too, without knowing why.

"One truck that brought the loudest cheers had painted across its side:

"'From Dunkerque to Pilsen to Prague.'"

The Czechs have always found a way to come back.

JUDGE DELAYS RULING ON TAXPAYER'S SUIT

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Feb. 27—By agreement of counsel, the injunction hearing in the action brought by John P. Drouth, Galion taxpayer, seeking to restrain the city of Galion from employing John F. Porter, formerly of Troy, as service-safety director at a $7,200 annual salary, has been delayed until March 29. Hearing on a temporary injunction had been scheduled for Friday afternoon.

Drouth charged that the city exceeded its authority and was guilty of an abuse of discretion in employing Porter at the stipulated salary.

Porter was appointed by Mayor H. H. Hartmann who took office as mayor of Galion Jan. 1. Plaintiff in the injunction action, a former Galion sanitary officer, was one of Hartmann's strongest campaign supporters.

Law provides that Porter, who has already taken over his duties, may not collect a salary while the suit is pending.

Meanwhile, Solicitor George H. Davies, Galion, will prepare an answer to the petition. He said today that he could not say at present what his answer might be until he has had time to thoroughly study the facts of the petition. He felt that by agreeing to have the case heard as quickly as possible, that it would prevent it from being dragged on for months.

It was also agreed that the first payment to Porter which would be due about March 20, will not be paid until after the March 29 hearing. The ordinance was passed Feb. 3, fixing the salary of the service-safety director, but the city's obligation is effective on March 5, under pending provisions of appointment, city officials point out.

Webster gives two definitions for CONFIDENCE
—both important
For Business:
"Relation or state of trust, or the association existing between persons or firms who depend on each other — trustworthiness — reliableness."
For Individuals:
"Moneys in possession or in expectation . . . gives a set to the head, and a confidence to the voice, and an assurance to the mien."
Dealings Here Inspire Both Kinds
While every safety precaution must be taken, we do want you to feel that our spoken words are dependable and that we can expect the same. That confidence speeds and increases business immeasurably . . . adding mutual pleasure and profit.
Being unable to foresee the complete future but knowing that bankers must judge by past performance, it behooves every individual to build that invaluable confidence of "money in possession or expectation" through the medium of savings and checking accounts.

Irish Nick Marysville for Share in Loop Crown; Prexies Drop Finale to Bellevu

St. Mary Earns 17th Win in Overtime, 52-49, After Lead Changed 25 Times

By BILL DIEM

A Delaware High school gym full of tense, screaming fans saw a superlative demonstration of basketball last night as two of the best Class B teams in the Central district battled on even terms for the championship of the Mid-State league.

It was the Irish of St. Mary against the Marysville Monarchs in the game of the year—a game that was tied five times, a game in which the lead changed hands 25 times.

Matching each other point for point, the two teams ended deadlocked, but the Irish forged ahead in an overtime to win, 52-49, and avenge a one-point setback given them at Marysville earlier in the season. The victory earned them a share in the loop crown with the losers.

Stuber Comes Through

Irish guard Bob Stuber, a great clutch player, came through twice for the Irish when the chips were down. With six seconds remaining in the regular game and the Irish trailing, 44-42, Bob was fouled and drew two trips to the charity line. While Delaware patrolman "Doc" King quieted the screaming crowd, Bob sent in both shots to tie up the game and send it into the overtime. Imagine the pressure he was under out there alone in front of 12 hundred fans. If he missed one of the two chances, the game was Marysville's.

Then in the overtime when the locals were behind, 49-48, Bob sent in the field goal that won the game. Dick Schuler added another to sew it up.

Center Jerry Kingsmore, with a deadly pivot shot, led Marysville with 22 points. Playing a brilliant game under the basket, Jerry fouled out just before the official time out in the fourth quarter, and his absence may well have been the turning point of the game. Forward Harry Evans followed him a minute later, and his mate at that position, Jack McGuire, went out on the foul which gave Stuber the double try at the free throw line as the regular game ended.

Every Other Shot Good

The Marysville team connected on every other field goal they attempted for an amazing 50 per cent average. They made good on 21 of 24 free throws for a brilliant 87 per cent average.

The Irish hit on 15 of 50 attempts from the floor for a 30 per cent figure, and made 22 of 32 charity throws for 69 per cent.

St. Mary forward Johnny Baldauf led the Irish to their win with 17 points. Dick Schuler scored 13, five of them in the overtime. Dick Drake, who engaged Kingsmore in a brief scoring duel as the second half began, counted nine. Stuber ended with 10 and and Dan Smith counted three.

Drake Opens Scoring

Dick Drake opened the scoring and the game see-sawed the rest of the way out.

The Monarchs took the biggest lead of the night—five points—in the third quarter and led at the end of it, 31-26, but the Irish pulled up steadily until John Baldauf tied up the game at 37 all just after the official time out.

In the overtime Schuler and Baldauf gave St. Mary a three-point lead, but free throws by John Dayton, Bill Wall and Buddy Hoffman knotted the game again. Then Dick Schuler sent in a charity toss, but Harold Hill countered with a two-pointer.

Bob Stuber then sent in the winning field goal and Schuler added the clincher.

17th Win of Season

It was St. Mary's seventeenth win of the season and closed out the regular play. They'll enter the district basketball tournament at Westerville next week.

The Marysville Reserves took the measure of the Irish youngsters, 36-22, behind the scoring of Buddy Hoffman and Charles McCracken, who counted 13 and 12 points. Bill Merchant, in leading St. Mary, was held to seven. It was their third setback in 21 encounters.

OSU COACH WES FESLER SPEAKS TO RAM BOOSTERS

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., Feb. 28 — "They have absolutely no basis," said Ohio State university Coach Wesley Fesler speaking of rumors that fraternity politics run and ruin the football team, in a talk to members of the Rams Boosters club at Upper Sandusky Thursday evening.

Such rumors were current, Coach Fesler added when he played at State in '26, '29 and '30, and they probably will continue to circulate, but in fact the coach there is now in full charge of the team, the staff and football policy.

He said Ohio boys should attend Ohio colleges and those who are potential grid material of big league caliber should attend Ohio State. Playing in their home state he pointed out will allow the boys to make a name for themselves in the territory where they will later enter the business world.

Redmen's Better Shooting Accuracy Spells Defeat for Harding, 67-

By BILL MURPHY

Because they were unlucky enough to run up against the B... Vice Redmen when they were hitting on 36 per cent of all field ... attempted, the Harding Prexies failed to snag a victory last ... in their final game of regular season play, surrendering aft... here tight to the red-shirt Redmen, 67-55.

Paced by Dick Riddle who laid down an 18-point barrage and Jim Coss and Dick Gherman who fired 14 markers each, the Presidents maintained a team average of 32 per cent on 60 shots from the field. That is 20 successful flips or one through the hoop for every three attempted, yet the Redmen hit on 27 of a possible 75 shots to thwart the Hardingmen in possibly their best effort of the season. Mathematically, the Prexies would have had to shoot 101 times at 33 per cent accuracy to have won by a single point. At the gratis line, the Prexies did even better, tossing 15 successful gift shots out of 23 attempts for a mark of 65 per cent.

Bellevue Opens Scoring

Captain Dean Todd opened the scoring in the first quarter with a one-handed flip from the foul circle for the Redmen as he got his 18-point spree under way, but Dick Gherman banged one in for Harding a second later to tie the score. From there on the pace waxed faster and faster with smart ball handling and sharp shooting being featured as four men on each team broke into the scoring column. The period ended with the count reading 15 for Bellevue and 12 for Harding.

Starting the second stanza in the same tempo of the first, Riddle cut the meshes with three clever shots from in close, Dick Thomas hit on a duo of neat two-pointers from the side in rapid succession, Coss sank his favorite fake shot from under the hoop and Gherman added three for a total of 15.

Milt Bruckner, who took game honors with 19 points, paced the Redmen with nine of their 18 tallies in the second frame, and the boys took their half-time rest with Bellevue leading by a score of 33-27.

Hot in Third

Bellevue came back hotter than ever in the third quarter and pumped in 21 points from all angles of the floor while the Presidents added 11 markers.

Going into the final period with the score at 54-38 against them the Prexies began to chop away at the lead and cut it down to 12 points before the final whistle as they outscored the Northern Ohio league champions, 17-13, and came out only six points short in the last two quarters, 34-28. They lagged by only six in the first two stanzas, 33-27.

After the tournament drawings are made today, the Presidents can start with a clean slate, reassured of their ability to maneuver a ball around a basketball court, and go into the fairground coliseum at Columbus a definite threat to any team they face.

Reserves Win 13th

Harding's Reserves won their thirteenth conquest last night, knocking off the little Redmen, 39-29. Playing a slow scientific game the Vice Presidents were as cool and deliberate about controlling the ball and the spe... the game as professionals. P... by Bill Buckingham who sw... the meshes for 13 tallies, ga... most of them on sharp one-h... ers from just beyond the ... circle, the "B" boys jumped ... 11-5 first period lead, incre... it by 10-5 in the second st... and in general gave the Bell... cagers a lesson in floorman...

Roger Andrews took ... honors for the Vice Presi... with 10 points, followed by ... Taylor who racked seven. S... ing in the third quarter, Bel... suddenly got hot and ba... away at the backboard fo... points while holding the Ha... courtsters to 11, but that was... temporary, and Wolfe, Buc... ham, Andrews and company ... on a stalling act that lasted ... most the whole quarter and ... the same time dominated ... scoring as they flipped ... points, five on fouls, while ... ing Bellevue to three. Final ... count, 39-29; final season ... 13 wins and three losses.

JAMES STEWART, above, plays the role of a newspaper reporter in the dramatic production, "Call Northside 777." The film will be shown for seven days starting Tuesday at the Ohio theater.

The city editor is played by Lee J. Cobb, the reporter by James Stewart, his wife by Helen Walker and the convicted man by Richard Conte.

"The Voice of the Turtle" is concerned with Sally Middleton, a jobless actress, who is upset over her latest romance and vows that she will not fall so easily again. She then meets an actress friend who introduces Sally to Bill Page, played by Ronald Reagan. The two spend the weekend together and their casual introduction blossoms into love.

Bette Davis at State

"Marked Woman" starring Bette Davis and Humphrey Bogart, and ...Raiders of the Border" with Johnny Mack Brown and Raymond Hatton, will be shown Sunday and Monday at the State theater.

Billed as a double feature for Tuesday and Wednesday are "Black Spot" and "Black Angel." The former stars Chester Morris and Constance Dowling, and heading the cast in the latter are Dan Duryea and Peter Lorre.

Preston Foster and Gail Patrick are the stars of the film, "King of Wild Horses," which will be shown as the main attraction of a double feature Thursday through Saturday. Completing the double bill will be "Down the Western Way" with the Hoosier Hotshots and Jack Leonard.

Palace Movie Features Operations of T-Men

"T-Men," a case-filled drama of the criminal world based on actual treasury department records, opens Sunday at the Palace theater to play through Tuesday. Through this film, the American public, for the first time, is given an intimate glimpse into the workings of the least publicized of all government agencies, the treasury department.

Starring Dennis O'Keefe, "T-Men" is based on a compilation of three actual cases from the files of the department and was filmed with the assistance of the law enforcement agency. The film pictures activities of a nationwide counterfeiting, bootlegging and stamp forging ring and details the operations of a pair of T-Men who go "under cover" to track down the nationwide rings.

With action set in the major United States cities the story follows the dangerous activities of the T-Men as they worm their way into the gang to obtain evidence.

Billed for Wednesday and Thursday is the suspenseful drama, "If Winter Comes" adapted from a great novel of the same name by A. S. M. Hutchinson. Starred are Walter Pidgeon, Deborah Kerr, the new star and Angela Lansbury.

The film tells the story of a man who had three women in his life.

Friday, on the stage, will be Russ Carlyle and his orchestra, with both afternoon and evening performances. Appearing on the screen will be "Linda, Be Good."

"Golden Earrings" At Marion Theater

"Golden Earrings," an adventure-romance, and "Code of the Saddle," an exciting outdoor western drama, will be shown Sunday through Tuesday at the Marion theater. The former stars Ray Milland and Marlene Dietrich, and heading the cast in the latter are Johnny Mack Brown and Raymond Hatton.

In the former, Milland plays a British colonel who is escaping from Nazi captors across Germany. His progress is helped by a fascinating gypsy teller who disguises him as her sweetheart and a member of her roving clan of people. "Code of the Saddle" tells of two investigators of a packing company who are intent on checking into a range war which threatens their cattle supply.

Billed as a double feature Wednesday and Thursday are "Good Girls Go to Paris" starring Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell, and "The Arnelo Affair" with John Hodiak, George Murphy and Frances Gifford.

"Good Girls Go to Paris," a comedy rerelease, tells of the troubles of an English exchange professor, bewildered by the activity of an American college campus, who finds himself a confidential advisor to a young waitress. The story in "The Arnelo Affair" tells what happens when Anne Parkson, neglected by her busy lawyer-husband, falls under the fascinating spell of a ruthless gangster.

Friday and Saturday the films will be "Battling Hoofer" starring James Cagney, and "Rose of Santa Rosa" with the Hoosier Hotshots and Patricia White.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

I DO not know when anger that did not concern matters of life and death or treason, had so stirred me as that which I felt when Mrs. Tiger had finished her story of Katie's hysterics.

I have forgiven my faithful, hard-working housekeeper for her tantrums so many times in the years since my early marriage when she first came to me, solely because all her good qualities so outweigh her two faults of harmless snooping, and unreasonable jealous temper tantrums, that forgiveness has become a habit.

Had the time come to give Katie her "come-uppance" and discharge her for this last insubordination? The question lingered with me as Mrs. Tiger told me that she guessed I "was elected" to deal with Katie, and I knew that it still would be with me when I faced my rebellious housekeeper.

"She is in her own rooms?" I repeated, merely to gain time in pulling myself together for the ordeal before me.

"Yes," my neighbor replied. "Jim is with her. But let me give you a pointer. She hasn't got real hysterics, although she's crying and laughing as if she was a mad thing. Jim slapped her face, and threw cold water on her—you know that's the only way to treat hysterics—and the way she went after him with her nails and her feet was a caution. But he just grabbed her up stairs as if she were a baby. Jim's awful strong, you know. I tiptoed up and heard her crying and laughing. But she isn't doing any screaming, and she didn't spoil her dinner. It's all ready to serve, and I know her well enough to know that she'll have to be tied down to her bed with ropes, if she thinks I'm going to serve it."

"Nevertheless," I said resolutely, "that's the alternative she's going to face the minute I get upstairs, that and dismissal. I'm extremely tired of these scenes."

My neighbor gave me a shrewd glance, then she chuckled.

"Got your own mad up a bit, I'm thinking," she said with the freedom of old friendship, "and I can't blame you. And it won't do Katie a bit of harm to think she's got her 'come-uppance' at last. But I'm not touching the dinner, unless you order me to, and I'm hiding in the store room until I hear her coming down—I'm betting she'll be trotting behind you as meek as Mary's little lamb—and then I'll scoot off home."

I gripped her shoulders, and looked resolutely into her eye.

"If you stir from this kitchen before I get down, I'll never speak to you again," I threatened. "I mean that. Now, let's see. She turns her oven to 450 for biscuits. I'll just start the pre-heat at that. When the red light fades, turn it to the oven will you please?"

"Katie'll kill me," she prophesied but there was a laugh in her eyes.

"On the contrary, she'll thank you prettily or she'll never cook another meal in this kitchen," I said with determination as I turned away and went toward the staircase that led to the two-room suite which was occupied by Jim and Katie.

"Do you know, if you were a horse in a race, I'd be betting on you," my neighbor called softly after me with a chuckle.

"Thank you. I hope your faith will be justified," I told her over my shoulder, and then I was mounting the stairs to the second floor.

I could hear the sound of muffled sobs, alternating with equally muffled peals of laughter, as I neared the door, but there was no sound from Jim.

I knocked loudly and called out at the same time.

"Let me in, please."

Postpone Trial Date For Hardin Co. Nurse

Special to The Star

KENTON — Trial date for Mrs. Grace Davis, Kenton nurse, who pleaded not guilty to causing the death of an accident in connection with the traffic death of Jack Chamberlain, aged 7, last October 7, has been postponed until March 29, it was announced today by Common Pleas Court Judge D. D. Tedrow.

Postponement was asked by the prosecution on the grounds that state witnesses are still being sought. Mrs. Davis is to stand trial when she was indicted shortly by the Travers jury which also refused to set aside the boy's death as accidental. Mrs. Davis was questioned by authorities for more than eight hours the day following the accident at the school intersection.

In Memoriam

★Of Nellie Baldinger. Died Feb. 29, 1944.

We could not wish you back, Mother,
In this world of pain and woe,
For we know that God knew best
When He said it was time to go.
Your life was a life of service,
So patient, humble and kind,
Your thoughts were always of others
And self was left behind.
I know you had your heartaches,
Your burdens, toil and pain,
But it mattered not how heavy the load,
You kept smiling just the same.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

When a Baby Is Malformed

Sometimes a baby comes into the world ill-fitted for life by reason of some bodily malformation present at the time of birth. Fortunately, today the skill of the surgeon can do much to correct many of these defects of nature so that many of these children can now be saved.

One of these disorders is known as atresia of the esophagus.

In this condition, the upper end of the esophagus has not united with the lower end; hence, an operation must be performed to bring the two ends together. The sooner the operation is done, the better, since the infant, as a result of vomiting, may breathe material into the lungs and thus develop pneumonia. In addition to this, he is unable to receive any nourishment; therefore, an operation must be performed as soon as the diagnosis is made and, if possible, by the time the baby is three days old.

Another one of these congenital malformations is known as pyloric stenosis. This a blocking of the opening between the stomach and bowel due to enlargement of the muscle. This condition is also treated by means of an operation, which should be carried out promptly. However, it may be necessary to build up the baby's condition by the giving of fluids under the skin, and injections of whole blood into a vein, before the operation is performed.

The first part of the bowel also may become blocked due to constrictive bands of tissue growths.

Success in these cases depends upon how early the diagnosis is made, and upon the infant's general condition before the operation is carried out.

Another condition requiring immediate operation in babies in most cases is known as intussusception. This is a sort of telescoping of the bowel. About nine out of every ten cases occur in male infants between the ages of five and eighteen months. The disorder begins suddenly with pain in the abdomen and the passage of blood and bloody mucus from the lower bowel. Usually a swelling can be felt in the abdomen. It has been stated that, for every hour over twelve hours that the condition persists, the chances of recovery are reduced in proportion.

During the first year of life, a condition known as diaphrahmatic hernia may also occur. In this disorder, the stomach or bowel passes through the diaphragm into the chest cavity. The diagnosis usually can be made by an X-ray study of the chest. Here again, operation is required for a cure. An operation, as a rule, should be carried out as quickly as the patient can be prepared for it.

Questions and Answers

M. J. S.: My hands are numb all the time. What could cause this trouble?

Answer: Numbness of the hands may be due to a disturbance of the circulation or to some trouble with the nervous system. Because of the variety of causes responsible, a complete study by your physician would be required to determine the cause in your case.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 28 — More than 100 AFL-Electrical Workers left their jobs at the Terrace Plaza hotel construction site yesterday in what a union spokesman described as a jursidictional dispute with the Communications Workers of America (Ind.) The stoppage, affecting only electrical work, is in protest against the installation of telephone lines by the communications workers, he added.
